

ArborTags

One of the few pines to have its needles bunched in groups of five. The needles drop usually after two years. They are 3-5 inches long, bluish green, with white lines on the underside.

www.arborworks.org

Pinus strobus

White Pine

Pinus strobus

White Pine

The cones are 4-8 inches long and markedly narrow with a long stalk. The scales are thin and rounded at the tip.

www.arborworks.org

©1996 American Association of Amateur Arborists

The bark is gray and smooth, becoming furrowed and plated with age. The branching is horizontal to slightly ascending, usually in whorls of 5 branches giving the tree a tiered look.

www.arborworks.org

Pinus strobus

White Pine

Pinus strobus

White Pine

A fast growing landscape pine it can reach 50 feet within 20 years. At maturity it can grow to 200 feet, losing its lower branches. The tree is named after the clean white wood. This was the timber of the tall masts and spars of early American clipper ships.

www.arborworks.org